

Peter Doyle

June 23, 1826, - June 17, 1896

PETER DOYLE IS DEAD.

At about 9 o'clock on Thursday morning, June 17, Peter Doyle, after long and weary months suffering from that terrible disease, cancer of the throat, bid the grief stricken family a last farewell and passed out into the great mysterious beyond, into whose portals the sufferings and anguish of physical pain has never entered.

Mr. Doyle was one of the early settlers of Mt. Pleasant. He settled on eighty acres of land about three miles east of this village. Several years after, he purchased the Thurston Scott farm, making 160 acres in all. There he has since resided, with the exception of two or three years, which he spent on a farm near Attica.

Mr. Doyle was a great lover of his home, and could always be found there by those having business to transact with him. He was a kind husband and father, and a good neighbor, and will be greatly missed by those friends and neighbors who have known and associated with him for more than a third of a century.

In their great bereavement the family have the sympathy of all.

The funeral took place on Friday. The remains were taken to Dayton, followed by a large concourse of friends and neighbors, where they were laid down to an eternal rest in the Catholic cemetery near that village. May he rest in peace.
